BUILDING THE SMARTER KITCHEN

Innovative, custom home construction has become the guiding light that leads to creative solutions for many areas of the home. With focus on owner individuality, the kitchen has remained a strong center from which a house becomes a home.

In continuing the tradition of time-tested kitchen appliances, life in the 21st century has become hectic. Fortunately, product development has been keeping up with this pace by making life a little easier, environmentally friendly and designed with beauty in mind.

While going hi-tech is not a new occurrence, more recent innovations have widened the path to increased efficiency for today's living standards. In many instances, certain builders have made it a key objective to integrate items that make food preparation smarter, more efficient and friendly to the environment.

Recent product developments that have given way to innovation include:

- An intelligent refrigerator with an advanced cooling system that can be operated by remote control via the Internet or a cell phone.
- A dishwasher that detects the amount of debris on the contents to determine what water temperature and cycle are needed.
- Or even a wine cellar that has an absorption cooling system with no motor or compressor and that is completely vibration free, thus eliminating sediment disruption in the wine.
